BAKO BULLETIN

From the office

September has been another busy month here at Bako Wales. We've seen even more new product launches this month, which you can check out on page 18!

The team here have been working hard to finalise our seasonal ranges for this year. We are pleased to say that our Halloween range is now available for order. From Halloween decorations to finished seasonal products, we hope you will find something to serve your customers this spooky season. You can find pictures of this year's range along with prices on page 15. Stock on these lines are limited so we recommend placing your orders as soon as possible to avoid disappointment.

You may have also noticed a few new faces out on the road delivering your orders. So, if you see any of our new drivers, please give them a wave and say hello!

For queries and further support, contact your sales manager or the customer service team who will be happy as always to assist you.

BAKO BULLETIN

Market Information

Sugar

Sugar prices have eased for the next sugar crop year, and we expect this to lead to cost savings for the 2024/2025 season. Supply is estimated to exceed demand in the global sugar market for 2024/2025 thanks to increased sugar production fed by optimal weather conditions. We're currently working on cover for the next year and look forward to passing on the pricing benefits over the coming months.

Cocoa

Cocoa prices have surged over 90% since the start of the year due in large to severe weather conditions experienced in the Ivory Coast and Ghana (the world's biggest producers) which have affected crop yield. There is a circa. 30% deficit worldwide this year, which has led to a huge increase in demand vs supply. Communications from some of the world's largest chocolate manufacturers are that prices are likely to remain high for the foreseeable future, due to continued uncertainty in the market, and extreme weather patterns below the belt of the equator.

Nuts

We have been working towards finding a new nut supplier for quite some time and are happy to announce the launch of our new range which will bring both cost savings and improved shelf-life to customers on a complete range of nuts. We should be fully transitioned over to these products this month once we have sold through our present stock lines. Check out page 13 for more information on our new range.
